

About Us

Kline develops and produces integrated software platforms, technological solutions and services for financial intermediaries.

The mission of Kline is to be more responsive towards the new requirements of markets and investors, both in terms of operational efficiency and organization by offering an innovative product, able to follow changes in technology and regulatory standards.

The core business of the company is represented by integrated software platforms, constantly updated from normative point of view, and systematically innovative in terms of technological evolution.

Years of experience and a solid technical expertise have enabled us to develop a highly customized and adaptable product, designed for Banks, Investment firms and Asset Management companies.

Kline has established itself in the market, combining its strong technical strength with a customer-oriented approach: Kline follows its customers at all stages of the adoption process and during the legislative and regulatory changes completing its offer with a support service.

In order to achieve our objectives, we offer flexible, modular and customizable systems, able to follow the imposed change and creating a competitive advantage for the end user.

The character of inclusiveness of our proposal ensures that every customer can take advantage of the new implemented, modified or improved functions and procedures at any time and without additional cost.
